A Jamaican View of the Virginius Affair.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 20—There was no concealment made of the actual errand of the Virginius. While she was here it was notorious that the officers had dancing parties on board and public meetings were held in honor of Cuban independence at which the consignee of the Virginius occupied the chair. The steamer was repaired while in port and coaled at the expense of Cuban refugees. While at Port au Prince several Jamaicans on board the Virginius became alarmed and ran away but were hunted up and dragged from their places of concealment and delivered over to the officers of the [illegible] and put in irons and so were forced to go on the [illegible].

Complications Growing Out of the Virginius Matter.

MADRID, Nov 20—The situation of affairs between Spain and the United States is very grave. A serious misunderstanding exists between Minister Sickles and the Spanish Cabinet. When Secretary Fish telegraphed the news of the execution of the Virginius people, Sickles demanded a stay. The Foreign Secretary answered that he did not believe the report and questioned Sickles' authority to act. Sickles then, in the name of the United States, protested against the inhuman butchery and insult to the American flag, and demanded that Spain should enforce obedience to her orders in Cuba. The Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs declined to permit Sickles to discuss the municipal affairs of Cuba and the interview ended angrily. Sickles says he does not see how war can be avoided, as Spain will concede nothing.

A SCENE IN COLLEGE.—The Boston Globe of October 9th relates this story giving a little insight into the peculiarities of college life.

Saturday morning the freshman class of Hamilton College thought it had a grievance. The exact nature of this grievance, when subject to an analysis, would, perhaps be as hard to determine as that of the majority of grievances college boys from time to time think proper to resent. Be this as it may resentment against proper authority at this particular time took the form of a bolt from mathematical recitation. When the bell stopped ringing not a freshman was in the lecture-room. Nothing daunted, the tutor immediately [illegible] the janitor after one of the members of the class. Now, however ripe rebellion may be in a whole class, no single member ever considers it "unmanly" to decline a summons to a private lecture. This student therefore immediately repaired to the recitation room. Instead of lecturing him on the evils of bolting however to his surprise he was merely sent to the board to solve one of the problems of the day's lesson. The janitor was then dispatched after another member of the class who upon his arrival was received in the same manner. Another and another was sent for, until the whole class was assembled, each one upon being summoned supposing he was to have a private interview with the tutor. The expression on the last arrival's face is better be imagined than expressed. When the class bolts again it will in all probability try its resentment upon some other professor.

WHY THE DEACON FLED.—The other day, as a menagerie was entering a New England town and the majestic elephant marching at its head was nearing a particularly muddy creek, one of the local deacons was seen to burst wildly from the throng of spectators and rally, with streaming locks and coat tail uttering wild appeals to the "good gosh" of New England worship and evidently anxious only to escape anywhere out of the world. He was pursued by a committee of select men and finally stopped after a chase of three miles. Then with tears of repentance, he unfolded his terrible story. It seems that when a boy he had met that identical elephant at a circus and given him tobacco instead of the peanuts which the trusting beast expected. It is a well known belief of the small boys that an elephant once deceived in this way, will "lay" for the deceiver for the rest of his natural life and that whenever he meets him he will deluge him with muddy water. Conscience and this common superstition had made a coward of the good deacon and he had fled from the doom of dirty water which he [illegible] had finally overtaken him.

MARINE PHENOMENON.—Capt. James Frost of the ship Wildwood reports a phenomenon at sea. While in latitude 40 20 longitude 131° on the 27th August, the ship passed close to a large tree standing erect twenty five or thirty feet out of the water with two limbs about half way up. He thinks the trunk was fully four feet in diameter at the water's edge and when seen it must have been about 400 miles from land.—British Colonist.

On Saturday of last week, while the family were sleeping, the house of Mr J R Bell in Eagle creek precinct Clackamas county took fire, and all the household goods were destroyed the family barely having time to make their escape. We were unable to learn the amount of the loss but it is said to be very severe on Mr Bell.

THE VIRGINIUS!

Exciting News from Spain.

Rumored Attempt to Assassinate Minister Sickles.

Preparing for War.

Interesting News from Madrid.

CHICAGO Nov 21—The National Republican (Washington) will publish to morrow a special dispatch from Madrid that the feeling amongst the people as exhibited by outbursts of passion on the streets indicates the most excited vindictiveness towards the United States. The mob inspired by this feeling and infuriated by the public press which loudly insists that Sickles passports be returned to him, rallied before the United States Legation and threatened Sickles with violence. The authorities dispersed the mob. This incident is but a slight indication of the strength of the animosity against the United States. Fears are entertained by the friends of Castelar's Government, that if it makes satisfaction in the Virginius case

THE GOVERNMENT WILL BE OVERTHROWN.

The Republican will also print an official statement from the State Department to the effect that as soon as notices were received from Madrid further executions of the Virginius people were suspended in Cuba. While this fact does not mitigate the first atrocities it serves to present the case [illegible] favorably for Spain. Without regard to possible embarrassments of Castelar's Government the United States will insist upon full reparation for the insult to our flag and outrages upon our citizens as the Virginius was prima facie an American vessel.

RUMORED ATTEMPT AT ASSASSINATION.

NEW YORK Nov 21.—Another dispatch from Madrid says a second attempt has been made to assassinate Sickles and that he was wounded. His condition is very uncomfortable but he says he believes the Spanish authorities are able to protect him.

A large number of Naval officers have been ordered to duty at once. There is great activity in all the yards, preparing vessels for sea. In less than thirty days the fleets will be in Cuban waters—at least twenty of the most powerful vessels in the Navy.

Secretary Robeson had an early interview to day with the Bureau officers of the Navy Department to which he reiterated his instructions that the various departments of the naval service shall exert themselves to the utmost in order that all vessels being prepared for sea shall be in

in every respect, and all ready for a period of active service.

The Government has purchased a small steamer called the Dispatch. Her officers have been ordered to duty to day. This vessel will be used for the purpose of carrying mails and dispatches between the North Atlantic fleet and our ports along the Southern coast from Charleston to Key West.

The officers of the Spanish war steamer Arapiles are now being completely fitted out at the Navy Yard.

VERY ANXIOUS TO GET AWAY.

Having received orders to take their vessel into Cuban waters as soon as possible. The officers at the Yard say it will be a shame to allow her to depart. They say the Spaniards have not recognized the international law and they fail to see why the United States should be so considerate.

The greatest activity prevails at the navy yard and every effort is being made to hurry up the work of fitting vessels for the sea. Workmen are

SHAM HAYS AND HIS BULL [illegible].

Some forty years ago the managers of a race course near Brownsville, on the Monongahela published a notice of a race one mile heats on a particular day for a purse of $100 free for anything with four legs and hair on. A man in the neighborhood named Hays, had a bull that he was in the habit of riding to the mill with his bag of corn, and he determined to enter him for the race. He said nothing about it to anyone, but he rode him around the track a number of times on several bright nights until the bull had the hang of the ground pretty well, and would keep the right course. He rode him with spurs which the bull considered particularly disagreeable so much so that he always bellowed when they were applied to his sides. On the morning of the race, Hays came upon the ground "on horseback" on his bull. Instead of a saddle he had a dried ox hide, the head part of which with the horns still on he had placed on the rump. He carried a short tin horn in his hand. He rode up to the judges stand and offered to enter his bull for the race but the owners of the horses objected. Hays appealed to the terms of the notice insisted that his bull had four legs and hair on and that therefore he had a right to enter him. After a good deal of cussin and discussin, the judges declared themselves compelled to decide that the bull had the right to run and he was entered accordingly. When the time for starting arrived, the bull and the horses took their places. The horse racers were out of humor at being bothered with the bull and at the burlesque which they supposed was intended, but thought that would be over as soon as the horses started. The signal was given and they did start. Hays gave a blast with his horn and sank his spurs into the bull's sides which bounded with a terrible bellow, at no trifling speed the dried ox hide flopping up and down and rattling at every jump, making a combination of noises that had never been heard on a race course before. The horses all flew off the track every one seemed to be seized with a sudden determination to take the shortest cut to get out of the Redstone country and not one of them could be brought back in time to save their distance. The purse was given to Hays under a great deal of hard swearing on the part of the owners of the horses. A general row ensued but the fun of the thing put the crowd all on the side of the bull. The horsemen contended that they were swindled out of the purse and that if it had not been for Hays' horn and ox hide, which he ought not have been permitted to bring on the ground, the thing would not have turned out as it did. Upon this Hays told them that he could beat any of their horses anyhow and if they would put up $100 against the purse he had won he would take off his ox hide and leave his tin horn and run a fair race with them. His offer was accepted and his money staked. They again took their places at the starting post, and the signal given. Hays gave the bull another touch with his spurs and the bull gave another tremendous bellow. The horses remembered the terrible sound and thought all the rest was coming as before. Away they went again in spite of all the exertions of their riders while Hays galloped his bull around the track again and won the money. From that time they nicknamed him Sham Hays. He afterwards removed to Ohio but his nickname stuck to him as long as he lived.

PLUCKY.—The lady telegraph operator at Carolinas Station P W & B R R is evidently an unscarable girl. A few nights ago an attempt was made by some burglars to break into the solitary little depot building where the lady Miss Annie Clark was busy at work. Hearing the noise the lady at once divined the cause as the recent paying off of the employes had aroused the supposition that money was contained in the safe at the depot. After telegraphing to Meyersmills for help she proceeded to doubly secure the doors and windows and with a poker kept the robbers at bay until the assistance sent from the shape of a locomotive with a couple of officers aboard dashed up to Carolinas Station. Unfortunately the burglars succeeded in making their escape. Such a woman would be handy to have around. Pitt[illegible] [illegible] Nov 7th

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

THE SELF COMPLACENT BAY CITY—THAD HEAT AND KNICKERBOCKER AND THEIR MUTUAL ADMIRATION—A NOBBY FRAUD—THE GREAT RACE—DOLLY VARDEN AND HER LOVER—THE COMING SENATOR—CRIME IN HIGH STATION AND LOW PLACES—PERSONAL GOSSIP.

SAN FRANCISCO November 16 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

How would it please you and your readers if some one should take up a lyre and twang a chord from the famous air "San Francisco"? Lyre lyre—euphonious enough and poetical enough, but perhaps unfortunate as used. However you mustn't gauge the statements I make by any allusion to string instruments.

Pardon me when I assert the trite observation that this is quite a village. San Franciscans say so and it must be so. If you want to be considered up[illegible] speak to a native as if there were other cities besides this and New York, in the Union, entitled to the slightest consideration. The iron nerve that stretches across the continent, connecting these Eastern and Western hearts of trade, seems to thrill each with more than common sympathy. New Yorkers speak in glowing terms of Frisco and Californians dote on Gotham. You hear of Chicago as a half-way station. St Louis Cincinnati, Pittsburg and such towns, are mere country hamlets, designated on maps and supposed to be inhabited. We go and come across the continent as you cross to and from East Portland. And this easy and frequent intercourse with the East is having

ITS EFFECT.

California for years, delighted to be eccentric—and it was odd. Wealthy States like genius in individuals concedes them this. The pick and shovel and revolver won all the actual renown for her she ever had. The two first brought population and enterprise and the latter [illegible]. But where would our Harte and Mulford and The Overland be if they had not sung of Sarina and a hero. Years ago men expected to die with revolver notes for a requiem, [illegible], parsons and undertakers have come in vogue. The constant stream of tourists from the States and the Old World, flowing through the State, impart their customs and manners in many things. You see it in the styles of dress on the street and at home in both sexes. You see it in the restaurants and hotels and the old Californian notes it particularly in the tradesmen and on Change. The "bit" of the Pacific coast is becoming the mythical coin it really is and five-cent pieces are popular. A small matter, but significant. All these innovations being generally of a progressive character speak well for the susceptibility of Californians. But there is such a thing as being too susceptible, you know. when this feeling sets in strong, it is apt to become gullibility. I am led to this remark by thinking of several instances wherein the proverbial shrewdness of some of our "bloods" and sports figured very badly. You recollect the diamond swindle and how some of the "heavy men" were sinched by a sharp Kentuckian. He got away with a clean $800,000. Then came Doble and Goldsmith Maid, and the "boys" stacked all their chips on Occident. The race terminated as adversely for this section as that one in Portland which John Phoenix so racily described where

That speckled bull of Stewart made matters worse,
He packed the money in a hand cart and didn't care a cuss,

* * * * * *

And since then we hain't bought nothin', nor sold [illegible]—"Sports" as well as other classes of society, go their length on anything foreign. Anybody with a good make up a certain dash and an engaging drawl or stutter can come it over them, it seems. One of Victoria's subjects, whose street swagger and "Aw, be Jove" was the acme of swell and sport alike took fine lodgings in the city naturally scraped acquaintance with some of the leading horsemen, and by them was courted and admired. He attended Agricultural Park for all the racing and finally inaugurated the English sport of hurdle races. During a number of weeks he had failed to obtain his "remittances," and his friends advanced liberally. The other day he packed his trunks told his landlord he was going into the country to knock down a few snipe, you know, and has evidently gone to stay, as there are several gentlemen here who would shed tears of joy if the body of that Britisher could be found in the tules. They know themselves for "grouse" and that he has gone to flush more like them.

Since I have begun on horse, I may as well tell you about the all absorbing event not only to turfmen but to everybody in our city and environs which came off to day at Ocean View Track.

THE RACE FOR $20 000.

It was an international running race, free for anything in the shape of horse flesh given under the auspices of the Pacific Jockey Club, four miles and repeat. The entries were Thad Stevens of California, Hubbard of New York, Joe Daniels of Michigan, True Blue of Kentucky, Arizona, of Tennessee, Mamie Hall of California. Hubbard was withdrawn because of lameness. For a week prior to the race the town was crazy on the subject. The newspapers teemed with articles on the horses giving their exploits and pedigrees how they looked in the stables and how they appeared under the saddle how much exercise they had every day and how they were trained. Every morning this was read and commented on by the public. Bets of all descriptions were made, and it was astonishing to hear the amount of horse knowledge gratuitously distributed about. State pride made Thad Stevens the favorite in the pools which were sold nightly in the Cock House billiard room to immense crowds. Once in a while True Blue's friends would give him a lift and he would sell first but this happened only twice I believe during the excitement—on Thursday night before the race and on the course after the second heat won by True Blue. The nobility of the horses, the beauty of the day and an overweening interest in the result, almost depopulated the city. [illegible] in town went to the race your correspondent among the rest. There was no particular route to the grounds, but going by the Mountain View road after reaching the highest point there was a good chance to see the advance and concentration of the mighty host. The road we were on formed a way for an unbroken human [illegible] horses carriages and foot to the left, about half a mile from the course another column similar to ours joined us, coming from where the trains were hourly discharging their thousands. Another came in by the beach from the Cliff House and still others across fields and ravines were the stragglers of the three grand columns. First of us was a fine view of the city and bay. [illegible] and the hills behind, sentinelled by Diablo's towering form. West was the calm Pacific specked by the sails. Incoming and outgoing ships as objects forgotten by the ocean sources whose [illegible] [illegible] just here I was repaid for all trouble [illegible] the time of taking notes [illegible] five minutes afterward I was [illegible] on the road the victim of a runaway team with slight hurts—thanks—thank something good [illegible] chances [illegible] the course [illegible] and got up in the [illegible] circle. The course is a pretty fair high one of the Salem track elliptical in shape and an even inside the circle. To give you an idea of the [illegible] the Salem track and build an amphitheater on one side with seats rising up twenty tiers and fill it then hang the fence full on the other side and on a range of low hills just back of the fence and people them fill the field half full of vehicles of every description full of persons inside and [illegible] and then take a [illegible] crowd of a thousand or two and drive them in and any where in the besides taking care to fill up ten feet of space the whole length of the amphitheater near the track and you just about [illegible] have it. The race and everything incident thereto you will have had by telegraph. Only allow me to say that if you ever saw 15,000 of 20 000 minutes it was when True Blue was crippled on the last mile of the third heat. The race then was virtually won by the "Poor Man's Friend" as Thad is endearingly called by his admirers. Those who lost, I am told, didn't shout. If so, they must be few, as everybody in eyeshot of me yelled like Modocs. There was no dignity, no decorum, in anybody and I, I wouldn't swear it but I think I saw one of our prominent Judges execute a "walk around" in a space he had cleared in the crowd. The last heat was over. The sun had gone down half an hour before, in splendid colors on sea and sky, and like a demoralized army in retreat excepting the feelings of the throng, all turned their faces and steps to the city. With the dust and deepening shadows it was fairly dark at the close of the race. How the crowd got back is hard to tell. Now (past midnight) I can hear the roll of vehicles and shouts of men, still arriving, and it will be great good fortune if all get back who went out. In the city, during the day, the progress of the race was bulletined at the different newspaper offices, and when it was finally announced that Stevens was victorious, a yell of joy in the vicinity of Clay street ran with electrical rapidity throughout the city wherever there were ears and voices to waft the good news. The city to-night is on a general hurrah.

Well it is all over, and I metaphorically stick a feather in California's cap. If for no other reason because I like the name of Thad Stevens. Is there any Pennsylvanian who doesn't? The old man was grit in his lifetime and the peer of his cotemporaries in legislative halls, His namesake of the turf is today the first horse on this continent for speed and bottom.

GOOD TIMES.

Telegrams from the East speak of the distressed condition of labor in many localities the stoppage of mills and factories, altogether or partially, and attendant evils consequent to the money panic. Here the panic does not seem to be felt. There was a slight flutter in stocks at one time but it soon passed away. There is no complaint on the score of labor and politics being dormant the people generally are contented and happy. Living is cheaper here—excepting somewhat exorbitant rents—than it has ever been. You can pay as little or as much as you like for physical necessities according to whether you go in for tone or substantiality.

THE ONLY MALCONTENTS

Are the newspapers and politicians. The recent elections in this State have made the Dolly Varden party very popular, and as all the papers are anxious to show their love for the "dear people, they are firing hot shot into each other in the shape of quotations of sentiments uttered when they were on the fence. If we may believe what they all say poor Dolly at one time had not a friend in the inky world now she will have to struggle hard to keep from being smothered by their caresses.

Politicians are exercised over the Senatorial question. I have heard of no one rash enough to venture to say what kind of a Legislature California has selected for the coming session. It is a vexed question. One thing is likely, however, and that is, if the members elected prove true to their constituents—which, in these times, is allowing a wide margin for probabilities—Gov Booth will be our next Senator. He has the Central Pacific in the balance against him, and its gold may kick the beam. In the meantime, some of our city and Government officials are

A nice little game was being played in the public school department. Bids were asked and contracts let for furnishing certain of the schools with furniture, etc. In very many cases the charges were in excess of the bids. The bills were paid as charged, and a great many dollars went into the pockets of somebody. There has been a hanging out of soiled linen in consequence.

And now comes an official all the way from Washington, who "wants to know, you know, why the Superintendent of the Mint does some things so. The case as stated by our local papers amounts to the assertion that he has been too confiding in his employees. Which plainly goes to show that some, at least, of our financiers, are not of a suspicious disposition.

CRIME.

In addition to the righteous overhauling which the United States Courts are giving the officers of ships trading to this port, who have cruelly abused their seamen the Court of Associate Judges Knife and Pistol, at recent sessions, rendered swift decisions, and have now to answer to the people for their acts. Ned Allen known as the wickedest man in San Francisco had a stiletto driven through his heart in his own saloon, and although the police have made several arrests on suspicion the public believe the right man is scot free. It was a bold and adroitly executed assassination. There was another case of a brother's vengeance for a sister's lost virtue in which the seducer received serious gunshot wounds. It's the old story, and a popular verdict of "served him right." Altogether the city has been quiet for the past two months—quiet for a city.

The Statesman of the 21st says "We were shocked last evening to learn of the death of Mr I N Miller, of Waldo Hills, which he met in the most frightful manner. The circumstances, as far as we were able to learn them last night, are as follows. On Monday Mr Miller and his son started out hunting together, to be gone, as we understand, several days. The second day (Tuesday) moving about, the brush the son thought he discovered some game within range, and accordingly raised his gun and fired, to find, when too late, that the messenger of death had done its work only too surely—that the shot had struck his father, inflicting a mortal wound. The unfortunate man was borne to his home by his grief-stricken son where he lingered until yesterday afternoon, when he breathed his last. One of Mr Miller's daughters was stopping with Mr Joseph Harding's people, in this city, who are relatives of the family, and knew nothing of the death of her father until a messenger arrived last evening bearing to her the terrible news of the accident. Mr Miller has lived in Waldo Hills about two years; was an industrious honorable man, and highly respected by all who knew him. He was an old resident of the State well known by all our citizens and the unfortunate and stricken family will find many sympathizers in their grief."

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. [illegible]

THE SITUATION IN CUBA.

Cuban dispatches have been greatly exaggerated the real danger there exists [illegible] for apprehending an issue to the Virginius difficulty much graver than we have heretofore been willing to believe. General Sickles our Minister to Spain has been beset by one of those mobs for which the Latin races are noted. If our dispatches are to be believed the stiletto of some Spanish bravo has been meddling with our Minister though for what purpose [illegible] was attempted is not [illegible] apparent. It is quite probable that there exists among the lower classes of the Madrid populace that wild restiveness which as we have hinted, is characteristic of the race. It is something of a miracle that Castelar has survived the mood of assassination. Prim fell before the bullets of the same rabble and Serrano has on one or two occasions escaped a similar fate by the skin of his teeth.

If we will cross the seas to Cuba we will find the same rabies raging there. It is patriotism run mad—the useless [illegible] of the [illegible] maniacs who lie at the bottom of Spanish society or French sans-culottism blended with the fervent heat of the tropics. It has long been known that the ruling power of Cuba is the Casino Espagnole—a society of thugs whose cruel authority has drenched the Gem of the Antilles with blood and given over the estates of suspected patriots to the torch. In point of fact, the Casino of Havana is almost wholly responsible for the Virginius butchery. It has in times past been a power behind the throne—to-day it is the ruler of rulers and the superior of the Captain General. The savage barbarities of De Rodas were plotted in the chambers of this cabal. And more recently, when a [illegible] of one of the provinces suspends from the army a commandant who had shot all his prisoners on the field an order comes from Havana for the reinstatement of the brutal murderer. But the history of Spanish rule in Cuba is filled with deeds of blood like this.

The Casino Espagnole is the representative of the slaveholding interest in Cuba. It is not too much, perhaps, to say that this club has always manifested a bitter hatred of American institutions. The insults to our flag, the repeated outrages on our commerce and the vindictive persecution of such of our citizens resident in Havana as may have shown their sympathy with the liberation of Cuba from the Spanish yoke, all come from this source. Knowing this, the OREGONIAN has deprecated the warlike attitude assumed by a large portion of the press of the United States. We do not wonder at the indignant remonstrance which flamed over all the land when our people thought of the decks of the Virginius stained with the [illegible] of Spain with the bloodthirsty aristocrats who [illegible] for the atrocious deed. Cuba, of course, is a dependency of Spain, and the Captain General is appointed by and is the agent of the Madrid government. To this extent, and to this extent alone, Spain is responsible for the Virginius butchery. We confess that under the republic Cuba fares little better than she fared under the monarchy. But there are plausible reasons for this. The attention of the Madrid Cabinet is fully occupied with the difficult problem of home rule. Just now Spain is in the formative period [illegible]. It must be confessed that Spain has proven inadequate to the task of conquering Cuba. And we say plainly, if she cannot restrain the barbarous Casino, if she cannot conform her methods of warfare to the codes of civilization it is high time that outside parties should lend a hand.

The volcanic rabble in Madrid and the Casino Espagnole in Havana are digging at the foundations of the young republic with far greater success than has yet rewarded the bayonets of Carlos. The Madrid Cabinet is thus placed between two fires. If it shall abandon Cuba, destruction is inevitable. If, [illegible] the barbarities which have disgraced her management of the war, we may safely say Spain has done no more than any other nation would do under the circumstances. But unless a radical change is brought about by the Virginius affair the liberating army will speedily hold in their own hands the destiny of Spain's richest colony. The adoption of a humane policy [illegible] by the might avert the [illegible] we are inclined to question even that. However that may be, one thing is certain the Casino at Madrid [illegible] strained.

THE SWINDLED PATENT.

About this time [illegible] is a safe prediction for the [illegible] reliable almanac of those [illegible] Eastern exchanges we [illegible] record of crime which [illegible] telegraph has not found [illegible] "irregularities" and defalcations [illegible] curring every day with all the [illegible] of a moral epidemic. We [illegible] New York Tribune of [illegible] interesting account of the [illegible] method by which Henry D. [illegible] of the Security Bank of New York [illegible] converted $240,000 [illegible] directors have [illegible] fully to see [illegible] pray [illegible] and they [illegible] same number of the Tribune [illegible] the [illegible] Railroad which cost $160,000 a mile when it should have cost but $50,000. We are also told that ex-Governor James, of Nebraska, has been indicted by the Grand Jury [illegible] county for embezzling $50,000 [illegible] money which [illegible] braska. [illegible] distinguished [illegible] the side of the [illegible] which [illegible] made every man is the [illegible] fortune out of this thing. Lastly, we are informed that the "irregularity" of Phelps in the State Treasury of New York amounts to $310,000. These are a few of the instances in which within the last few days skilled [illegible] con[illegible] follow.

DEMOCRATIC CADENCES.

In quoting the opinion of the Eastern press on the November election a few days since we omitted this rhythmic smile taken from the column of the Albany N. Y. [illegible]

[illegible] largest free State in the world been [illegible] by wolves in sheep's clothing. The country is aroused. The [illegible] Democracy has taken the lowest from his main and the [illegible] from his mantle. The old Dominion [illegible] of the Empire State [illegible] clean [illegible] Look out for the Hudson on the north and the Mohawk on the west. [illegible] Look like the Alps [illegible] May the spirit of reform and purification [illegible] make a clean sweep. Take care of old Albany. Two Democratic Assembly tickets [illegible] straight through the gate [illegible] right in the mouth of hell and give the devil four counts against us. Send for Tegulus. Let Cato speak. Pour oil into the troubled waters—your country calls—and lay your acrimony [illegible]. The political martyrs of this year may be resurrected next year with contrasted humor [illegible]

The World struggles energetically to reach the eminence to which the Argus [illegible] so [illegible]. It drops this observation:

The Democratic party stands like the storm-beaten peak of Mount Washington rock-rooted in the crust of the earth and buttressed with eternal hills, still lifting its hoary summit into the sky.

Upon that solid base we build a conundrum. Why is the Democratic party like Mount Washington? Because it never moves. To-day it stands just where it was first planted. It knows no such thing as progress. Such a party can not die. It possesses the solid immortality of stocks and stones. It is made up of mechanical herds of voting automata. The Chicago Times calls it "a putrid reminiscence."

The Choctaw Legislative Council has just adjourned after an exciting session of about four weeks. In the treaty of 1866 Congress agreed to give the Choctaws $300,000 for the strip of country known as the leased district, provided the Choctaws would, within two years adopt into the nation and make citizens about 7,000 negroes formerly their slaves and give 40 acres of land to each individual. The time expired without action and from Council to Council the Government has extended the time. This money with interest now amounts to more than $400,000, yet so strong is the prejudice against allotting their lands that they have again refused to pass the act of adoption. The negroes are excited and will send a strong delegation to Washington to urge their rights before Congress. They do not want to be compelled to leave their homes and desire to have their status determined.

It took Mr. H. Boardman Smith, Congressman from the Elmira district (N. Y.) a long time to make up his mind as to what he had best do with Gen. Butler's handsome present from the Treasury of $4,644 80. But when Mr. Smith looked at the Orphans Asylum in [illegible] it were accepted or not, he should not return it to the U. S. Treasury, since in his opinion, it was not stolen property. At the close of his letter he remarked defiantly that he was not a candidate for re-election. That was a happy afterthought of Smith's.

The expert who was appointed to examine the books in the Treasury department of the State of New York reports that the defalcation of Phelps amounts to between $310,000 and $315,000. It is said there is little likelihood that the State will recover a cent of this loss. Shrewd thief Phelps.

The book critic of the New York Tribune has found something in Robertson Gray's new novel—"Brave Hearts"—which he terms "the splendid barbarism of the first California decade." That sounds well.

VARIOUS WAYS OF COOKING APPLES.

There is no article of food which can be prepared with such varied ways and in such toothsome dishes, as apples. Potatoes can be cooked in many forms but they cannot equal the preparations made from apples neither do they contain as much brain food. Whether eaten or cooked this fruit is generally popular and is equally desirable and nutritious for young and old. Apples that are to be used for sauce should be pared, cored and put into cold water, unless cooked directly to keep them from discoloring. Add a little water to the porcelain kettle or stew pan, cover closely and cook gently, not stirring them until the whole are softened or you will cook them in lumps; when soft stir and mash, add a little butter, sweeten and strain through a colander.

APPLE [illegible]

Stew the apples as directed for sauce, adding a little grated lemon peel and juice and omitting the butter. Line the side and bottom of a baking dish with them. APPLES IN IMITATION OF [illegible]

To three pounds of very hard apples take two pounds of loaf sugar and a quarter of a pound of best white ginger. Put these in layers (having first sliced the apples in eight pieces and cored them) alternately in a wide mouthed jar. Next day infuse an ounce of white ginger, well bruised, in a pint of boiling water, let it stand till next day. Then put the apples that have been two days in the ginger into a preserving kettle and turn over them the water from the bruised ginger. Simmer slowly till the apples look clear. Take great care not to break the pieces. If closely covered over a slow fire half an hour will cook them enough without needing to stir them. Put into jars and cover tightly while boiling hot. Let the bits of ginger remain in the syrup until it is served.

RICE AND APPLE SOUFFLE.

Boil two tablespoonfuls of rice in a half pint of milk, add when soft, the yolks of two eggs and sugar to taste. Make a wall with it around the sides of the dish, stew some pared and cored apples until soft, fill the center of the dish with them, fill up the apertures in the apples with candied sweetmeats or jelly and cover the whole with the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth and sprinkled thick with white powdered sugar. Brown in the oven and serve with cream.

CITY.

OFF THE TRACK — Last evening about 7:30 o'clock while the locomotive Junction was backing up to the shops, she ran off the track at the northern end of the trestle work, beyond J street, and narrowly escaped making a fearful plunge down the steep embankment. Accidentally the switch was left open near the commencement of the trestle work, and when the engineer backed up past the switch the tender and then the locomotive ran off on the ties. Fortunately the locomotive was moving slowly and the engineer reversed the the engine the instant he discovered the situation. The tender was violently twisted round and had the locomotive moved ten feet further, evidently it would have pitched down the high embankment, probably killing the engineer and making a general wreck. The jumping of the track made a tremendous crash which was plainly heard on this side. Many were of the opinion for a time that a terrible collision had occurred.

DANGEROUS ACCIDENT — Mr W. P. Abrams of the firm of Abrams & Hogue is lying in a very critical condition at his house in East Portland in consequence of an accident which befell him Thursday evening in his mill. He had given directions about sawing some lumber and turned away to leave the mill. Having reached the stairs he stumbled and fell to the ground a distance of 12 or 14 feet. He was found paralyzed from his breast downward and it was supposed that his back was broken. A surgical examination however proves that no bones are broken, and it is believed that there is no dislocation of the spine. The violent concussion of the spinal column is sufficient to account for the paralysis. Mr Abrams suffered intensely during Thursday night, but was easier during yesterday. Mr Abrams is an old and well known resident of Oregon universally beloved and respected. He has the sympathy of hosts of friends.

BODY FOUND — Chief Lappeus received information yesterday afternoon that the body of an unknown man had been found at the mouth of the Willamette. From appearances the man was drowned several weeks ago, as the remains were so badly decomposed as to be unrecognizable. On receipt of the intelligence, Lappeus notified Coroner Dryer who will proceed to the spot this morning and hold an inquest. The remains are without doubt those of the sailor who jumped overboard from the John L. Steph [illegible] more than a month since and was drowned. This sailor's body was never recovered and it was at or near the spot where the remains were discovered that the poor fellow made his last leap for freedom.

ON A ROCK AGAIN — We learn from the evening cotemporary that in coming down from Umatilla on Thursday, the steamer Idaho laden with wheat, met with a serious accident by running on a rock. A large hole was stove in her hull and she began to fill rapidly. The Captain however succeeded in beaching her in fine style before any damage was done to the freight. Aid was immediately sent for, and Thursday evening the steamer Tenino left Celilo to assist in unloading and raising the injured craft. The steamer Owyhee came down to-day bringing the passengers, mail and express from the disabled boat. The work of repair will be hurried as rapidly as possible and in a short time she will again be in running order.

PASSENGERS — The steamer Ajax sailed last evening for San Francisco, carrying away the following passengers: W. L. Halsey, C. T. Morris and family, Mrs Judge Denny and daughter, Miss C. Whitcomb, Mrs. D. P. Thompson, Capt. S. D. Holmes and wife, J. Werrick Reynolds, R. P. Layton, G. Ribbald, A. McGregor, J. Hanson, T. G. Christie, Dr. Walker, U. S. A., Capt. McGregor, Miss L. A. Stone, Miss Smith, Mrs. Peoples, Charles Diamond, J. C. Crawford, J. Alexander, Isaac N. Frank, Mrs. E. J. Moore, James McCaulay, W. C. Gardner, Geo. H. Wilson, John Nooning, F. Blush, Major O. O. Haller, S. Englander, Wells, Fargo & Co's messenger and 45 in the steerage.

SENTENCED FOR ONE YEAR — Chas Naing having been duly convicted by his peers of the crime of assault with intent to kill, was called in the Circuit Court yesterday morning to receive his sentence. On being asked by the Court if he had any reason to assign why sentence should not be pronounced against him he replied "No." Whereupon the Judge proceeded to announce that Charles should have free board and lodging at the Hotel de-Watkinds for the space of one year. The prisoner will probably be taken to Salem to-day.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE — In compliance with a generally expressed desire Rev. Dr. A. L. Lindsley will deliver a lecture on the subject of the Evangelical Alliance, which convocation was recently held in New York, at the First Presbyterian Church to-morrow evening. The well established ability of the speaker is a sufficient guarantee that the subject will be ably treated at his hands. The public generally are invited to attend.

BODY BROUGHT UP — The remains of the late John C. Dorey, who departed this life at Cathlamet on Thursday, arrived on the Rescue. On the arrival of the steamer the body was placed in a hearse and conveyed to the undertakers. To day at 2 o'clock the funeral obsequies will take place. Deceased was a respected member of the Masonic Fraternity, according to the rites of which Order the remains will be buried.

GONE SOUTH — This morning Madame Stevenson and Master J. W. McKenzie start for Salem. One or more concerts will be given at that place, when they are to proceed south visiting successively Albany, Corvallis and Eugene City. They will be absent about two weeks and then return to this city, when several concerts will be given. Mr Church the manager and agent, went up the valley yesterday.

A NEW WAREHOUSE — At the corner of C and Eighth streets carpenters are engaged in erecting a large warehouse which will be used by Messrs. Hawley, Dodd & Co. as a storage building for agricultural implements, etc. Work was commenced about a week since and has progressed so far that the rafters were being raised yesterday. Within two weeks the warehouse will be ready for service.

ATTORNEYS' TRANSCRIPTS — Supreme Court will convene at Salem in the second Monday in December. As the time is short we are requested to state that all attorneys who have appeals should make application to the County Clerk at once for transcripts. Delay in the matter will be attended with a degree of trouble which can be obviated by making timely application.

SALMON FISHERY — We learn that several parties now in this city are engaged in making preparations to erect [illegible] fisheries at Yaquina Bay [illegible] the arrangement can be [illegible] Salmon [illegible] put up [illegible] various ways.

IN CUSTODY — A man named Thomas Green was arrested yesterday and lodged in jail. He was charged with having assaulted his wife and also for threatening to kill her. Green is still in jail where he will remain until this morning when the case will be examined into.

CASE CONTINUED — W. H. Roberts the young man who was arrested on Thursday charged with grand larceny was arraigned yesterday in the Police Court. On motion however, the case was continued until this morning.

SAILED — The English ship Alba sailed from San Francisco last Monday for Portland. She will be due here in a few days. The Alba comes in ballast and is under charter to carry a load of grain to Europe.

BALLS AND PARTIES.

We have been favored with a card of invitation to the third social party to be given by the Portland Turn Verein at their hall on Monday evening. If arrangements will admit, we shall take pleasure in dropping in during the evening.

The armory of the City Rifles contained just enough "devotees to the art terpsichore" last evening to make those in attendance partake of the social enjoyments with a greater degree of warmth than were it otherwise as to numbers. With music of the first order, good prompting, excellent management and a floor sufficiently waxed to afford the dancers ease in tripping the "light fantastic," what more could be desired? The members of the company appeared as usual in full uniform. Capt. Davis and his aids, Lieut. Boyle and Capt. Sumner honored the company with their presence on the happy occasion wearing the garb of higher distinction and participated as freely in the "mazy dance" as any present. In a word, the second social party of the City Rifles was even more of a success than the initial entertainment, which took place several weeks ago.

AMUSEMENTS.

Reed's Panorama, which has met with success upon its first representation before the people of Oregon and Washington Territory in the cities where it has been exhibited, is being retouched at Salem. The proprietor, Mr. E. D. Towl, who is about to proceed Eastward via California with this beautiful work, will afford our citizens another opportunity to see the excellent painting during the latter part of next week. The Oro Fino Theater has been engaged and we predict for the proprietor full houses on the evenings devoted to the exhibition of the panorama.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

Religious services may be expected on Sabbath next at 7 o'clock P. M., in the Norwegian language by Rev. Dr. Fredrichsen in the Y. M. C. Association room over Ladd & Tilton's bank. All are respectfully invited to attend.

PERSONAL.

An Illinois exchange says that Hon. A. B. Meacham, the man who had his scalp partially taken off by the Modocs at the time of the massacre, is lecturing in Iowa.

Don't get crazy about the gold mines or a probable panic, but settle down to business just where you are, and when you take a notion to invest in a new suit of clothing and desire something really nobby and elegant in that line interview J. O'NEIL & Co. on the subject. They do not put on any big prices but always endeavor to satisfy on first acquaintance. You can't leave their place without entrusting an order to their attention.

The ladies should go to Stone's and see those novelties in neck laces.

CLOTHE YOURSELF — Now is the time to make a purchase of winter clothing. If you have not done so make it a point to consult J. KOHN & CO. who are able to show you the finest assortment of goods ever displayed in the city. They have the largest store and are thus enabled to display an immense stock. There is no denying the fact. You need not hesitate about prices as they have put the figures down to allow but a small margin to themselves. The place is opposite the National Bank.

KEEP OUT THE COLD — During the winter months everybody is anxious to avoid the severity of the weather, and various modes are resorted to in carrying out the best means of keeping warm. While BLOCK & WALDMAN are selling clothing from their immense stock at extremely low prices it would be well to call in and select a winter suit. They keep the best sell as low as any house, and [illegible] [illegible] W. corner Washington and Front streets.

A MISSTATEMENT CORRECTED.

In a recent number of the Dundee Advertiser we observe a communication written by Mr. W. McGavin Greig, who at present is residing in Scotland. The writer alleges that he spent the winter of 1871-2 in Portland. His letter contains some statements which we think are such palpable errors — to use no stronger term — that they should not be permitted to pass unnoticed. While the average Oregonian is perfectly willing and anxious that the truth should be told at all times about the country he must protest against having facts distorted or the climate misrepresented. The writer says:

"I must reiterate my statement that Oregon winters are notorious for their rainfall; that from November to May is the period of the rainy season; that during certain months of that rainy season the rain is literally a helter skelter pour for days in succession. In [illegible] 1871 I witnessed a continued pour, lasting forty days."

The italics are ours. Every old resident of this State knows perfectly well that the above assertion is a greatly exaggerated statement of the facts which cannot be substantiated by any reliable testimony.

However Mr. Greig's assertions may appear to others they are by any stretch of possibility have not been permitted to pass unchallenged. In the Advertiser of October 2d we observe a letter written by Mr. William Reid, Vice Consul at Dundee, in response to the one published a few days previous by Mr. Greig. Mr. Reid has resided for some time in Oregon and his statements are based on personal observations extending through a number of years, and also meteorological statistics which he has carefully gathered from the most reliable sources. The facts set forth in Mr. Reid's letter, we think, are worthy of belief and will coincide with the experience of those who have resided in the State for many years. He says:

"Either Mr. Greig's story of 40 days' [illegible] is incorrect or the official records of the United States are false and fraudulently kept. * * * Will Mr. Greig then persist in saying that his own unvouched statement is more reliable, and is to be believed in preference to the actual official daily meteorological records of the State of Oregon kept by the United States Government officer for a period of ten years? Does he imply that this officer would wilfully falsify the public weather records for ten years, and if so, for what purpose? * * * How does Mr. Greig get rid of the fact proved in my last letter that on an average of ten years two out of every three days of Mr. Greig's winter months (from November to May inclusive,) were actually dry without a drop of rain from sunrise to sunset!

"I always admitted and was quite aware that Oregon had a wet climate in winter while California has but ten to twelve days rain all the year round. Mr. Greig knows as well as I do that it is this striking contrast alone, and nothing else between these two adjacent States, which calls forth the Californian's remark of 'Webfoot' in reference to the Oregonians. I have met many California farmers who have repeatedly told me that they would gladly exchange California's climate with its frequent droughts and losses of crops, for Oregon's annual certainty and greater yield in productiveness of crops.

"But the question at issue is whether it ever rained forty days consecutively in Oregon of helter skelter pours in succession as alleged by Mr. Greig. To prove whether this be true or false, let us lay aside even the Government records, and let Mr. Greig name to us the district and length of time he resided in Oregon. If he does so I will undertake to prove by the evidence of ten or twenty gentlemen of the highest respectability, in the very same district in which he alleges to have resided, that his statement is incorrect."

As additional evidence that a forty days' continuous "pour" is an event wholly unknown in the meteorological history of this country we quote from a table kept, from the year 1859 to 1868, by Mr. Thos. Frazer of Portland and published in W. L. Adams' pamphlet entitled, "Oregon as It is. Its Present and Future." By consulting the table in question we find that during the winter of 1859-60 including the months of September, October, November, December, January, February and March, the following is the rainfall: September, 5 days; October, 6; November, 8; December, 11; January, 9; February, 10; March, 12. For the same months in 1860-61: September, 8; October, 6; November, 8; December, 6; January, 10; February, 0; March, 6. During these months in 1860-61, September, 5; October, 10; November, 8; December, 5; January, 6; February, 12; March, 2. For 1861-2, September, 2; October, 6; November, 11; December, 9; January, 2; February, 4; March, 7. For 1862-3, September, 4; October, 4; November, 1; December, 12; January, 8; February, 4; March, 8. During the winter of 1863-4, September, 1; October, 8; November, 10; December, 1[illegible]; January, 8; February, 4; March, 8. For the years 1865, '66, '67 and '68 during the months named, at no time did the rain fall longer than 13 days in any one month. From 1868 up to the present year the number of days in any of the winter months during which the rain has descended will compare very favorably with the above figures. Old Oregonians will regard as preposterous and absurd the assertion that it rains in this country forty days without cessation. Such an event was never heard of even by the "oldest inhabitant." A steady rain of four days and nights is a very rare occurrence. Mr. Greig's "helter skelter pour" is also very uncommon in this climate. In Oregon it drizzles, rains and mists, but the aqueous element does not descend in spasmodic torrents so common in southern latitudes. We have conversed with a number of very reliable gentlemen who have lived in Oregon and are thoroughly conversant with all the moods and caprices of this climate. They uniformly assert that they never knew or heard of a "forty days pour." Sixty hours consecutive rain is seldom known here. Twenty-four or thirty six hours rain is almost certain to be followed by temporary interruption, sometimes hours and even days intervening. Persons who are acquainted with this climate know Mr. Greig's statement to be incorrect. It is only to neutralize the unfavorable impression which such letters must create abroad that we have devoted so much space in showing his assertion to be ignorantly or intentionally wrong. Let the whole truth be told and Oregon need have no fears. By her own unexaggerated record she is willing to be judged.

FASHION NOTES.

Small fan pins worn low in the hair on the right side is a new and pretty German fashion just introduced in New York.

A new necktie for the ladies is called the Windsor, but whether named after palace, hotel or soap no one appears to know.

A new style of collar said to be intended for gentlemen is the nearest approach to the kind worn by "end men" in minstrel companies we have seen.

The most gaudy garments will be worn in the house this winter, such as sleeveless jackets of scarlet cloth embroidered in Nile green, gray and violet.

The latest idea of ultra fashionable ladies is to have their boots and shoes padded at the instep so as to give their foot at that point a high and graceful curve.

Ear rings made of English sovereigns are the latest novelty in jewelry. They hang from the ear from a fine gold chain fastened to the hook and are quite pretty.

Leather jewelry has been revived this season and will no doubt soon become fashionable. The new styles are odd, and for that reason will find favor in the eyes of many.

Velvet walking costumes imported this fall in New York are very elegant. They are made [illegible] in the Redingote style and the trimming is usually feather and fringe.

Artificial flowers are now used to decorate ball rooms, parlors and halls on festive occasions. They are cheaper than natural exotics, look quite as well and have not an oppressive perfume.

A new way of preserving autumn leaves is to iron them fresh with a warm (not hot) iron on which some parmaceti has been lightly rubbed. This method preserves all the tints to perfection.

In Paris black silk costumes for the house are made with pointed waist and a single trailing skirt. On this and the waist is raised embroidery in orange silk floss representing pine apples and acorns.

Scarlet hose, striped with black, are very fashionable just at present among young ladies of the beau monde. The fashion of wearing colored hosiery is of French origin, and somewhat questionable.

Cavalier boots, soon to be introduced, are turned over with leather just above the ankle, or so far as may be respectfully the point of turn, so as to give a faint imitation of the cavalier boot. An edging of lace falls over this.

The present style of wearing the hair is to have a single narrow chatelaine braid down the back of the head with two or three soft puffs on top and a crown braid in front. The back hair is still coupled up from the nape of the neck but its bare look is taken away by the chatelaine braid.

The new London note paper is of a coffee color, and folds at the top instead of the side. At the head of the sheet is a black crest or monogram, surrounded by a plain black circle. The envelope is square and has the same embellishment on the fold. Parchment note paper is also fashionable this season.

At a wedding, a few days ago, the bridegroom forgot the ring, and when it was necessary for him to hand one to the clergyman he whispered a few words to his future mother in law, who understanding his dilemma quietly removed one from her own finger and gave it to him, which he handed to the amazed clergyman, and the ceremony continued. Only those in the front pew understood what was going on among the bridal party.

Through branches low bending above,
My Mary and I as we wandered along
And whispered of beauty and love.
"We'll make us a nest like the birdlings," I said,
And never shall part any more.
"Oh yes," she replied, "and can furnish it nice
AT HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE."

Fair creature, there's many a wealthier man
Would gladly have you for a bride,
But no one can love you more fondly than I —
My treasure, my beauty and pride.
Oh had I a mansion with carpets of gold
And silver I'd cover the floor.
But, smiling, she said, "[illegible] purchase the best

I'll spread you a couch upon which to recline
When [illegible] shall call us to rest [illegible]
Of the [illegible] — [illegible] she said with a sigh

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. [illegible] 1873.

HUSBAND OR CHILD?

Translated from the German

No other ax resounded through the forest with such a clear and decided ring as that [illegible] by Thomas [illegible] so sure of its aim while raised between sky and its destined rest.

His voice was the [illegible] cheerful and [illegible] the merriest that reverberated in the beautiful woodland that extended through the Rhineland to the borders of Holland.

Wherever his hands were employed the work was accomplished in half the time. "The [illegible] Thomas," the "magnificent Thomas," the "industrious Thomas," were the names given him by people far and wide, and when he married and became the father of a son he was jollier than ever.

His wife seemed to partake of his spirit and his boy gave promise of becoming just such a happy soul. The whole neighborhood were happy in the harmonious life of this joyous trio while each derived a particular pleasure in witnessing the felicity of the other. But suddenly, the lightning flash of circumstances penetrated this happy home.

One bright morning, ax in hand, he stood beside a fallen tree while wife and son stood near, ready to gather the fragments and they [illegible] stroke.

High over his head the glittering steel was raised and as his glance noted the reflected ray of sunshine following it, he shouted merrily: "[illegible] meteor. Hui! Is it not verily like the flash of one?" But the shining metal and its attractive meteoric light did not disappear within the wood. Glancing lightly over the bark it entered Thomas' foot and there was no time for useless tears. The [illegible] heart did not vent itself in idle lamentations but questioned, how was she to get her husband home?

The other laborers had not arrived; Thomas was always the first at work as now he was always the first to regain his cheerfulness to encourage wife and child in this trial. A spring near supplied water to wash the wound that proved to be severe, and the manly Anton [illegible] of his little shirt to bind it up with.

This [illegible] Thomas set his big white teeth firmly together rose grasping with one hand the [illegible] of his boy and supported on the other with his wife he ordered "March quick! the house is not such a long way off, then all will be well."

Taking the shortest route home obliged [illegible] over a railroad track. Although this was a forbidden road for pedestrians they considered it the best in emergency. But here misfortune overwhelmed them in terrible earnest.

At the first step the sufferer caught his [illegible] foot in the rail, stumbled, fell, throwing the boy into the middle of the road breaking the little fellow's leg.

A helpless living mass they lay there and before both could be rescued from their perilous bed the steaming, roaring monster of the road came tearing [illegible] upon them, leaving their boy a mangled, bleeding corpse the next instant before them.

Such was the story told by Thomas and his wife to the horrified and sympathizing people. But there must have been something singular and mysterious connected with this mournful event that remained untold a secret within their own heart for, spite of repeated endeavors to have the story told again, they would always answer, "You have heard it once" while a shudder of horror followed at the remembrance.

Thus years passed without mitigating the strange melancholy and deep dejection that had settled on this once merry Thomas and his equally cheerful Gertrude.

The wounded foot had long since recovered, and Thomas handled his ax with his former [illegible] while his wife was ever at his side. Want and care were strangers in their home, and they retained the love and respect of all, and [illegible] each other as formerly. [illegible] their lips, and still this [illegible] sorrow that had banished every smile from the face of this once joyous couple.

Could it [illegible] the tragic death of their child? Naturally endowed with a sound mind and body a disposition cheerful and ready to see the bright side of all troubles that had heretofore overtaken them it was scarcely [illegible] that such natures should give themselves up entirely to this ceaseless grief. There must be some secret cause.

I left no pains untried to [illegible] myself in their [illegible] their confidence. Not only curiosity was excited, but I had a real [illegible] the matter and, I acknowledge, just the least suspicion of some [illegible] an accident, that [illegible] light to lead [illegible] people [illegible] to happ[illegible].

It is not necessary to explain how I brought it about, suffice it to say that one day, in presence of her husband Frau Thomas unbur[illegible] me in this wise.

"After the birth of our child I was a great deal happier and loved Thomas better than ever when he was at my side, but I could also [illegible] watch window and door frequently if he chanced to remain away longer than usual. I used to tease him frequently and say, Somebody is welcome to steal you now I've got my [illegible]. He would laugh at me then, saying, 'Well, if you have no further use for me all right and playfully leave the room as if in [illegible] and bang the door. But I knew he was only in fun and laughed, as if I did not care. Nevertheless my heart grew sad and was disturbed until his face again appeared at the door, and he would laugh at me with those great white teeth and say 'H[illegible] or child, which?' Then I quickly replied 'Husband, oh!' the husband.

"But it was so queer for just as soon as he was with me again, my spirit for teasing returned and I would say

"I think it is the child, after all.

"Then he would take the boy from my br[illegible] and dance him joyfully up and down, and say 'your right!'

"Then he would give me a kiss and [illegible] our little innocent jars were never quar[illegible] and ended in perfect content."

She paused for a moment silently before [illegible] while Thomas sat nodding his head sadly.

"You see," she continued "it is necessary [illegible] tell you all this. If it does seem foreign to the real subject, it belongs to it, for it became a [illegible] what [illegible] was asked as a joke became a frightful fact."

The woman was so overcome she could [illegible] a mute appeal for help toward her husband, but he only shook his head mournfully making a motion with his hand as if to bid her speak on looking into her eyes lovingly as if to cheer her.

"Well the story we told at the time of the accident was true in every particular up to our arrival at the railroad track. There it was a little different, and we hesitated in giving the exact manner of the horrid occurrence. We have never fully understood ourselves why. It would have been better I think if we had not made a secret of it, much of this weary shadow that has clouded our lives would have worn away had we talked it over with another person. That is why we give you our [illegible] hoping [illegible] right [illegible] and [illegible] and I led [illegible] I heard [illegible] as a [illegible] beyond the ground, and I supposed [illegible] away from us and the moments were precious. My poor Thomas was suffering terribly, saying his foot was burning like caustic, and it was only a step and we would be over, and had Thomas not had the misfortune to stumble we would have crossed safely.

"They both lay in the middle of the road Anton to the right of me Thomas to the left and in that instant their startled cry and the shrieking roar of the iron monster fell on my ear and through the dense fog I saw his burning greedy eye fastened on my dear ones while the fiery sparks were thickly scattered about us as if hell itself had opened to devour them.

"O! If I live a thousand years the horror of that moment will remain as I realized I could save one of them only one.

"Ah sir, sir! Human nature may be subject to a million different distressing heartaches and mental struggles, but heap them all into a life time, it is nothing compared to what I endured in a few seconds.

"I have often wondered since how it was possible the mind could comprehend so much while subject to such intolerable suffering and fright as now thought after thought flashed through my brain in so short a time.

"My mother heart yearned for my child and I seemed to grasp it while the hand of God himself seemed to hold me toward Thomas. [illegible] was he not [illegible] half of the [illegible]? Did you not swear at the altar never to forsake him? It seemed then as if I loved him best; he was more [illegible] his [illegible]. Then I thought oh horrible raven mother to desert your child. But the thing was upon us. I heard men's voices warning through the mist. It was as if they tried to stop it, but failed. It cut the darkness and rushed towards us. With one bound I turned from my child grasped for my husband and with the strength of a giant, raised him off the track, turned but the awful monster had passed, leaving me the crushed remains of my child."

She stopped short as if suddenly frozen in body and soul. Her husband trembled in every limb clutching [illegible] as if it could steady him. I stood a [illegible] witness of this fearful grief. My sympathy had no words, my eyes must have told her how deeply I entered with them into their [illegible] history.

Thomas recovered himself first. Turning to his wife he tenderly [illegible]. She started with [illegible] looked up at him, and then at me as if waiting for me to pass judgment.

I could only take her hand between my own and say,

"Poor, poor mother! Noble woman! Righteous wife!" At this her eyes beamed as if suddenly relieved of a dark veil, a flush of genuine happiness covered her face, the whole countenance of the woman changed from a sluggish horror to an incomparable relief.

The man stretched his hand toward me, his eyes flashing with joy, his head erected with manly pride, and for the first time in years his broad shining teeth appeared through a smile again.

"God reward your kind heart and good words, sir," she cried. "It seems as if we dared be happy once more."

She embraced her husband looking lovingly up to him and softly asked

"Do you not think so Thomas?"

"Just so, just so, wife." He could scarcely articulate the words for the emotion that conquered him now. Hot tears fell on his wife's hands and face; she too sobbed and wept with him. They were the first tears. None were shed during that horrible time.

"You see what it was that changed me so all these years, sir. The question constantly appeared before me. Have you not committed an unpardonable sin against your own flesh and blood? I could find no rest. My [illegible] was gone forever, and I told Thomas never again would I dare become a mother—"

A deep blush mantled her face and she paused. I thought here was the time to advise and restore harmony to the distressed family. I said reproachfully to her "You are [illegible] only to think of you[illegible] Frau Thomas. Do you not suppose your husband has also suffered all these years the [illegible] as yourself?" She looked at me astonished, and rather abashed replied:

"Of course he was miserable to see me so, but, as he could not help me, he let me alone."

"Now, Frau Thomas we have the secret and that is where you have been unjust and [illegible] your [illegible] You [illegible] exhibited regret that his life had been saved at so great a sacrifice to yourself. It left him in more uncertainty regarding your love for him, and [illegible] him if he did not think his life too dearly bought? It was noble in him not to reproach you for saving his life at the cost of one dearer to you. Is it not so Thomas?"

"Truly you have read my feelings better than I could have explained them. Frequently my heart seemed ready to break when I realize what you have said but I could not blame her when she had done so much for me."

The [illegible] was a study. Embarrassment, regret, perplexity all appeared until [illegible] shame she cast herself on her husband's breast, begging forgiveness.

It was his turn to be [illegible] and it was [illegible] to see the man act as if he had done something very foolish.

I left them confident in their future happiness, and so it proved. In time, another child came to bless the sorely tried mother's heart but never again the question, "Husband or Child?"

FRIDAY EVENING November [illegible] 1873

Gold in New York to-day 110[illegible]

Wheat in Liverpool—Average [illegible] 91 club [illegible] 13s.

The limited amount of transactions in our local money market furnish but little of interest matter for daily comment. Contracts for the use of money are of course continually taking place, but the [illegible] of the [illegible] of borrowers. The city banks have uniform rates but their [illegible] with their regular customers which they in their discretion prefer to accommodate [illegible] somewhat [illegible] the necessarily refused even though [illegible] from funds to the State [illegible] offered. The supply of available funds [illegible] not adequate to the current demand, nor has it been as large as would have been desirable for eighteen months, though brief periods of comparative ease have been occasionally experienced.

The conservative policy which has been pursued by the banks in making loans of large sums, while it may have insured greater safety in that it has kept their means within call and available on short notice has evidently retarded many very desirable improvements and enterprises. This in the nature of things is the result [illegible] and while the opposite policy might be followed with disaster, it would certainly afford more chance for the development of the resources of our State, and the establishment of industrial enterprises in our midst. We do not wish to be understood as blaming those who pursue this course as at all blamable, but as showing the need of a larger amount of capital to place our manufacturing interests especially upon a broader and more permanent basis. The rate at which money is usually furnished in our State is one of the greatest drawbacks upon its prosperity, as an investment which will warrant such a rate must be rare in any country. The want of the country is capital on such terms as prevail in the older settled States of the Union and in Europe. Let those who have it in their power give information as to the favorable opportunities which are offered for investments here and endeavor to attract the attention of men of means hither and with the dissemination of correct [illegible] concerning the varied and great resources of our young State we believe would come the means to promote and accelerate her progress until we should in the course of a few years take rank with many of the great producing and manufacturing sections of the country.

Wool and Hops.

The fourth series of London sales of Colonial Wool terminated last month and the fifth and last series of the year will be commenced on the [illegible] inst. The five series of 1872 comprised [illegible] bales while the four series of this year embraced [illegible] bales. The quantity catalogued for the next sale will show the increase for the year. In the series just closed fine combing descriptions of Australia sold well up to August prices, and some lots went a penny higher. The quantity of lamb's Wool offered was light and the best samples went [illegible] higher than in August. Cape Wools were in large supply and prices [illegible] from [illegible] less than at the previous sale, but the demand was good at the reduction.

Late mail dates from New York show a weak tendency in Hops, prices having declined [illegible] during the week. In the opinion of [illegible] Wells, a recognized authority, the market there is not likely to improve much until after the 1st of January. The arrivals have been in excess of the demand, owing to the unsettled condition of monetary affairs. Any further [illegible] would at once check importations and thus restore values. The same authority [illegible] considerable inquiry for Californians [illegible] few samples of which have been on offer here and the supply of which is now nearly exhausted. Well known California [illegible] such as the Willow Creek Bird and [illegible] growths would command fancy figures if here [illegible].

The Produce Market

We notice no important change in our Produce market to-day, though the tendency in some departments [illegible] by telegraph from San Francisco seems to be towards greater weakness. This is more particularly noticeable in Dairy Products, Dried Fruits, Oats and Eggs. While the reports that come note no important decline, parties receiving them claim that they render more caution in transactions necessary, as shipments of purchases made at current rates here might be hazardous. Wheat has undergone no apparent change, the market being very quiet and transactions confined to a few small lots which have changed hands at $1 85 and 90. Buyers are operating slowly and as most of the vessels here are now loaded or have enough within call to finish their cargoes and future arrivals are uncertain as to time, the leading exporters deem it unnecessary at this time to urge the market, preferring rather to take their chances when the ships are at hand. Advices from San Francisco are to the effect that [illegible] tons of Oregon Oats are in store there subject to sale with no buyers, a fact which tends to repress any considerable activity in shipments of that cereal. The Wheat exporting business however continues to manifest much animation, the cargoes of the Ganges, Professor Airy, Windward, Rival, Roscoand Santa Rosa being rapidly placed on board the two latter being now about loaded, while the ballast of the Cutwater is not yet all out. The [illegible] Ajax this afternoon took about [illegible] sacks for San Francisco.

Aside from the ordinary amount of local trade business has been dull for almost the entire week, except in the activity which has characterized wheat shipments.

MEDICAL.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE

NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNY ST., NEAR COMMERCIAL San Francisco. Established 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency etc. Diseases (of years standing), Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe and has resumed practice at his Dispensary 623 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases

How many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering out a [illegible] existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid emaciated and disfigured faces and [illegible] broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends [illegible] those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make inquiry or you may fall into the hands of charlatans.

[illegible] Weakness

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz.: sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will [illegible] satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco q[illegible].

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Cured at Home

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin in registered letter through the Post-office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn to certificates, deceive the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in [illegible] any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients, letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to [illegible] that he professes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Postoffice Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the DAILY OREGONIAN. jy6d&p
